Excel Scientific Moves to New State-of-the-Art Facility

Victorville, CA. October 21, 2008. Excel Scientific has recently moved to the Southern California Logistics Airport in Victorville, California. Excel's new building includes 8,000 square feet of office space with state-of-the-art teleconferencing capabilities and 18,375 square feet of manufacturing and warehousing. A major expansion of manufacturing is anticipated in the next six months. In its new home, with an international airport dedicated to cargo processing, easy access to major freeways, and rail service to the port of Long Beach planned for the near future, Excel is ideally positioned to provide exceptional service to its customers.
